Premiere: HHL's Part-Time MBA in The Economist Ranking

It is the first time that HHL Leipzig Graduate School of Management is listed with its part-time MBA Program within the global ranking "Executive MBA?• of The Economist. HHL is one of the few business schools to be placed among the top executive MBA programs with its part-time MBA Program. Normally, program participants are younger, with less leadership experience and a stronger national background than in other EMBA programs that address mostly international business leaders. The inclusion of the HHL part-time MBA in the Economist Ranking shows very clearly and positively that with this program participants have greater career opportunities and earning potential already after a short period of time.

Prof. Dr. Andreas Pinkwart, HHL Dean, says, "HHL being included in the Economist Ranking for the first time shows the extraordinary performance of our business school. It demonstrates that we are gaining ground internationally being able to compete with other business schools worldwide not only with our very successful M.Sc. Program but also increasingly with our MBA Program.?"

HHL ranks 52nd within the 2015 Economist Ranking "Executive MBA?• which includes 62 business schools. This ranking is one of the most extensive and important international rankings for Executive MBA Programs focusing on General Management.

It uses data from two different surveys: one with alumni from the graduate school and the second survey collects data at the schools itself. Evaluation criteria for the ranking are salary and career data as well as internationality and program structure amongst others.
