CNN Expansión ranks full-time MBA of HHL No. 1 in Germany for value for money

CNN Expansión has released its 2016 rankings of full-time MBA programs, and HHL Leipzig Graduate School of Management is listed among the top 75 worldwide and is ranked 1st in Germany regarding value for money, career entry after graduation, and internationality of the MBA class. The rankings were published in the February 2016 issue of Expansión: MBA The Best in Mexico and the World and is available on <http://www.cnnexpansion.com>.

Says María Fernanda Trujillo Ramírez from Mexico, "HHL was absolutely the best option I could have chosen for my exchange program. Its great reputation was certainly an important fact in this decision, but also the great hands-on projects which certainly enrich us as students. Additionally, Leipzig is a great and vibrant city to be mostly enjoyed by students. HHL is a great platform for many opportunities. After finishing my exchange program I got an internship at Adidas. This will be an amazing highlight in my career."

Expansión is a Mexican-published business magazine that tells the stories of success and failure of major companies and entrepreneurs and provides information on market intelligence through reports and rankings.

The MBA program offered by HHL Leipzig Graduate School of Management, which is taught in English, is considered one of the best independently developed programs of this kind in Germany. Since its introduction in the year 2000, the 15-21 months long full-time MBA program has focused on teaching management and leadership skills in a global context. This is supported by an innovative curriculum and 28 lecturers from seven countries. They provide students with an insight into the latest scientific management approaches in a global context. The practical relation is ensured by teaching content with practical relevance including case studies, a field project accompanying the program or an optional internship abroad. International Management is not only taught but also integrated into everyday life at HHL thanks to the international background of the students and professors. The international cross-linking of the program is denoted by substantial cooperation with universities abroad. From Australia to the U.S. - HHL has more than 110 partner universities worldwide. The students have the opportunity to spend a term at one of these partner universities. The intensive and professional counseling for students from the initial contact to the alumni network must be emphasized. A Career Service accompanies students from the day they are admitted to the program until the successful conclusion of a job search. Further information: <http://www.hhl.de/mba>
