

ESMT R D Annual Report 2013 highlights research success

ESMT R D Annual Report 2013 highlights research success ESMT has used the past year to strengthen its research and teaching, particularly in the areas of technology management and innovation. In September 2013, Francis de Véricourt, most recently Associate Professor of Technology and Operations Management at INSEAD, returned to ESMT as Professor of Management Sciences. Joe Peppard, previously Professor of Information Systems at Cranfield School of Management, supports the area of technology management, also since September 2013. Associate Professor Linus Dahlander was named the holder of the newly established KPMG Chair in Innovation on October 1, 2013. His current research topics include the effects of open and distributed innovation processes in companies. Since July 2013, Catalina Stefanescu-Cuntze, Associate Professor and Dean of Faculty at ESMT, is holder of the Deutsche Post DHL Chair with a focus on operations and logistics. In 2013, members of the ESMT faculty published 37 peer-reviewed articles in top academic journals, including 15 articles in A and A+ ranked publications. In addition, five books were published. The various publications cover a wide range of topics, including organizational and innovation management, corporate responsibility and sustainability, consumer research, and competition policy. Overall, more than 60 research seminars were held at ESMT in 2013. Academics from renowned institutions such as Harvard University, the University of California at Berkeley, and Columbia University visited Berlin to present their research.
